Maya and the Rising Dark

By Rena Barron
J F Barr 298 pages Fantasy

Maya is looking forward to summer in her South Side Chicago neighborhood and attending Comic-Con with Papa. But as she experiences strange occurrences, like a shadow man in her dreams and hyenas stalking the streets, Maya begins to think her world is turning into one of Papa's fantastical stories. When Papa goes missing, Maya discovers she is half human and half orisha, and Papa is the guardian of the veil between our world and the Dark. Can Maya use her newfound powers to save her father from the Lord of the Shadows?

Stick With Me

By Jennifer Blecher
J F Blec 250 pages Realistic Fiction

Twelve-year-old Izzy is navigating uncharted territory now that her former best friend only wants to hang out with the class "mean girl." As if that wasn't difficult enough, Izzy's family moves into their garage apartment for their winter break so they can rent out their home to a family with a twelve-year-old girl named Wren. Izzy soon discovers she and Wren are at Drama Camp together for the week. Both targets of the "mean girls," can Izzy and Wren bond together to stand up to their enemies and maybe even make a new friend?

War Stories

By Gordon Korman
J F Korm 231 pages Historical Fiction

Twelve-year-old Trevor is obsessed with World War II and his great-grandfather Jacob's war stories. When Trevor learns that his great-grandfather has received an invitation to attend a ceremony in France honoring his war efforts, he is ecstatic. As Trevor, his dad, and Jacob journey across France, they are stalked online and in person by people who don't believe Jacob was a war hero. Is there more to Jacob's story than what Trevor has heard his entire life?

Millionaires for the Month

By Stacy McAnulty
J F Mcan 323 pages Realistic Fiction

Felix and Benji, middle-school classmates, find a wallet in Central Park while on a class field trip to NYC. The wallet belongs to Ms. Laura Friendly, billionaire founder of a social media site. Soon, these two very different boys find themselves partners in an unusual challenge created by Ms. Friendly: spend $5,368,709.12 in one month, and she'll give them each ten million! The catch? Navigating the many rules of this "game" without alienating everyone they know.
